

Quickly check and correct surface temperature variations

SENSOR PRODUCTS ■ Maintaining heat within certain parameters between contacting platen and rollers is critical in several converting and printing applications.

Thermex surface temperature distribution film is an economical thin film which can be used in virtually any application to monitor heated contacting rollers and presses from 93–149 °C (200–300 °F). Maintaining proper thermal contact across the interface of vacuum and flat web-type machines and lamination presses are among uses for this film.

Upon exposure to heat, Thermex changes colour instantaneously and permanently to reveal temperature distribution between any two contacting surfaces. The intensity of this colour change directly relates to the temperature it was exposed to enabling Thermex to reveal spot high or low temperature zones and minute surface variations.
